BJR | from the beginning

Our history is radiology's history

The BJR digital archive from 1896 to 2008.

Articles in the collection start just months after the discovery of X-rays.

Read the classic papers from the early days of radiotherapy, radiobiology, medical physics, nuclear medicine, ultrasound, CT scanning and MRI.

Includes the famous article by Nobel Laureate, Sir Godfrey Hounsfield, on the invention of the CT scanner, which changed medical practice forever.

BJR|from the beginning consists of 113 years of articles including journals that make up the origins of BJR:

- Archives of Clinical Skiagraphy
- Archives of the Roentgen Ray
- Archives of Radiology and Electrotherapy
- The Journal of the Röntgen Society
- British Journal of Radiology

There is a total of 28,290 items, including Research, Editorials, Book Reviews, Product Reviews, Notes, Correspondence and Plates.

More than 28,000
items in the collection
