The BIR Gynaecology imaging update: Part 2

Venue: etc.venues Farringdon– The Hatton, London

CPD: 6 CREDITS

This event is divided into two separate study days and will bring delegates right up to date with imaging techniques employed in gynaecology. Part 2 of this series will provide an update on both benign and oncological topics will be covered providing a comprehensive 'A to Z' of the major subjects encountered in everyday practice and will bring together a high calibre of speakers at the forefront of gynaecology imaging. This will be supplemented by talks from oncologists and surgeons providing cutting edge modern treatments.

Who should attend: Both district general and teaching hospital radiologists with an interest in gynaecology. Radiology trainees and radiographers regularly performing gynaecology MRI. Gynaecologists will also find this comprehensive imaging review helpful.

Educational aims:

- To be able to accurately stage the major gynaecology cancers
- To understand the role of functional imaging in prognostication and assessment of disease response
- To be able to characterise with confidence adnexal masses according to the latest ESUR guidelines
- To illustrate the role of MRI in benign disease including infection, endometriosis, placental and uterine disorders
